In his book “Simple, isn't it?”, Andreas Dritsas flips the switch of his soul and turns on the light to give it to everyone... With profound directness, he underscores the need to train both body and spirit, which leads to the identification with the “whole.”

Leta Koutsocheira, Poet – Visual Artist

There is no need for the reader to agree or disagree, to accept or reject, to understand or not understand something in this book. Very simply, if they find something that “works for them”, as we say, they can take it with them, if they consider that it can help them improve their life.. After all, if we could say that this book has a goal, this would be to keep the door open for anyone who wants to admire the “miracle of the miracle”, the Human Being and Life!

Biography

Having spent his childhood in various parts of Greece and gaining experiences from various places of our country, with a temperament by nature focused on social and humanitarian issues, Andreas Dritsas came to “Omilos Eksipiretiton” (Servers’ Society) in 1984, bringing with him a long history of acting for the common good, higher university studies of a postgraduate level and professional experience as a senior executive in his field.

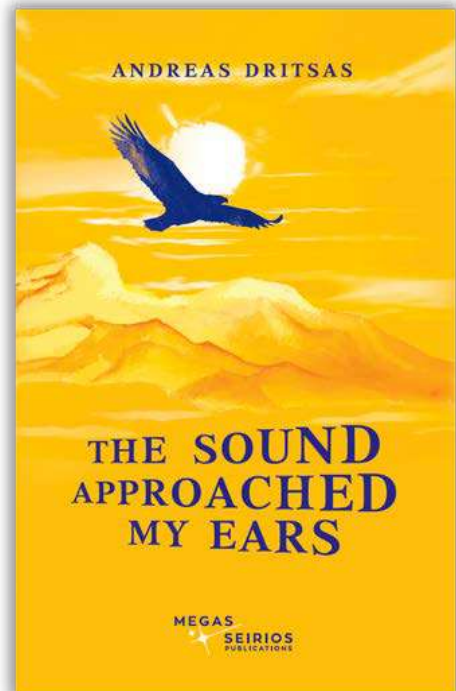

Just four years later, enchanted by the work of Omilos and the teaching of its founder, he and his wife requested to become Heads of Omilos, taking upon themselves the responsibility, the care, the supervision and the actualisation of literally every aspect of the function, action and expression of Omilos, always emphasising the function of the group. He has done countless personal appointments, groups and discussions with both members and non-members of Omilos in Greece and abroad, and since 2015 he has been the President as well as the Head of Omilos Eksipiretiton. He has given interviews and speeches at cultural and other presentations and events, while also creating and structuring the group of Omilos in Istanbul and the Association “The Servers’ Society UK” in London. Every two to three months, he travels abroad to meet with the members of Omilos there, as well as for various groups, day conferences, speeches on spirituality in everyday life, cultural events, meetings with academics, etc. He is married and has one child.

It is an imperceptible whisper of whispers in a deepening into Life and the Art of the Union of all, through the creative meditation of experiential dialogues, in the broader sense of the supreme balance, which comes from the friction of life and the discipleship of knowledge as a revelation of the self and as the joy of life. It is an undertaking of experience and wisdom, functioning as a compass of the essence.

Mary Sourli , Litterateur

The sound approached my ears... The sound of a human voice, the sound of an unwavering tree on a cliff, the sound of a bird burning in the Sun, the sound of the blood that is flowing, the sound of light in an empty vessel, the sound of a chord pulsating in ritual to the infinite vibrations of the audible current of life, the imperceptible sound, the powerful, abrupt, intense sound, the soundless sound... A book about Creative Meditation and Life.

Once again, upon the same fertile ground. With a distinctive expressive manner, you fertilize human values, and you bestow beauty and brilliance upon your texts. Many years of research, great intellectual labour, systematic study—an essence distilled and a precious treasury.

Anthis Vergis, Author

“The teacher forges the children’s consciousness; he/she works without inhibitions, with knowledge and love, both in their negative and positive expressions until the essence emerges and the real beauty blooms.” The author, an educator herself, leads us through her own experiences to show how the educator’s power and love spread to the whole of humanity through his/her students.

Biography

Klairi Lykiardopoulou was born in Athens. She went to school at the American College and completed her studies in pedagogy in the United States.

In 1980 she became member of Omilos Eksipiretiton - the “Servers’ Society” Spiritual Centre and received teachings on self-study and the emergence of the spiritual nature of man with the guidance of its founder, Dimitris Kakalidis. For almost three decades, she was President of the Society and was dedicated to its task.

She wrote 20 books, conveying her personal experiences and the knowledge she acquired from the teaching of the Servers’ Society, with an aim to demonstrate a dynamic way of life and a philosophical view which can help people to solve their problems when applied. She passed away in 2015, leaving a great legacy of experience and knowledge on human relationships and life.

For her literary work she has received commending reviews by the country’s intellectual world. Extracts of her books have been included in anthologies and literary magazines. Her trilogy about the role of man, woman and the couple has been approved for school libraries.

When the Earth is shrouded in clouds of soot, when the lungs of Life are reduced to ashes, when madness overflows in the face of the danger of a nuclear annihilation of humanity, you—amid all this profit-driven obscurantism of the very few—know very well that the saving force is amassed within the spirit of the many, even though the many are unaware of it...

Giannis Karavidas, Poet

The author invites us to participate in the dancing play of the earthly sphere with acceptance and love for all its energies, vibrations, movements, aspects. With short stories, fairytales, even dreams, she conveys us the message of Earth, the need to unite with it, to help it follow its evolutionary course in the Universe. To contribute consciously to the preservation and improvement of its kingdoms.

I really enjoyed your book. It focuses on the everyday person, and it's clear that you have the sensitivity to delve into their thoughts and feelings. It's easy to read and radiates optimism.

After observing events and stories of people in everyday life some questions rise: “To what extent do we observe the events that happen to us and around us? Do we live our lives consciously or unconsciously? When we make a decision, when an invisible change occurs that will deepen over the years, are we really there, or do we only think we are?”.

...“The Wisdom of the Poem” is not an ordinary book. It is the timeless voice of the lyrical, confessional, doxological verse, it is poetry alongside the poets of the world; it is its inspirer and presenter, the restless spiritual worker Dimitris Kakalidis. It is a work whose presence cannot go unnoticed, since it is a position, not a negation, since it is also an exhortation towards new conquests.

...It is a distinct and significant work in our Greek letters, it is the soul and spirit of life, it is the Wisdom of true verse, and it is also the wise Logos of Dimitris Kakalidis.

Mitsos Katsinis, Author

“Each poem and a vision, each vision and a truth, a potential realization.” This is a jewel book for Greek Literature; a rare, timeless, deeply philosophical piece of work with pioneering analyses of poems of Greek poets. Dimitris Kakalidis approaches, with respect and without any critical attitude, each poem; he discovers its sensitivities, its messages and at the same time he reveals its hidden essence. It is a work that opens “new, unprecedented paths in analyzing poems”, as mentioned by people of the letters and arts in Greece.

Biography

The poet and philosopher Dimitris Kakalidis was born in 1943 in Athens. In 1980, at the centre of the Greek capital he founded the spiritual centre “Omilos Eksipireiton” (Servers’ Society) to pass along the truth that he himself knew of and had acted out in his life: man is a magnificent spiritual being that possesses the power, the will, the love and the wisdom to transform his everyday life into a life of happiness and creation – and to help others do the same.

The Master Dimitris Kakalidis taught the expression of global concern towards everything and everybody; prompt response to need through selfless offering, complete acceptance of all aspects within man and of all currents of life, while acknowledging the one and common essence of them all, so that the spiritual nature of all people may be dynamically expressed. The Master himself was a living example to imitate: he was putting his teaching into practice in everyday life in a simple way, without ever asking anything for himself.

“The Wisdom of the Short Story” is a development of modern Greek thought that honors the contemporary spirit of our homeland. I am grateful to you for the blessed hour during which you guided me, leading me through to the essence of your word, to the sense of harmony. It establishes the multi-faceted critical approach of profound interpretations... I would call your book a spiritual achievement. It throws doors wide open. Let the strong pass through.

Eleni Argesti, Author

“The Wisdom of the Short Story” is a profound and philosophical work. Dimitris Kakalidis, often in a poetical manner, analyzes the stories, delves into ideas and interprets the concepts, as he attempts to reveal the truth, which, to the degree that can be comprehended, leads to the union with the essential nature, releasing humans from the commitments of ideas and the functions of the limited mind. With his work, the writer reveals the endless potential of literature, as it constantly offers its powerful incentives for the new paths of perception and understanding of the cosmic nature by humans.

Vasilis I. Lazanas, Author

Your "Incentives" encapsulate meanings of life in concise, epigrammatic word. They have substance and depth. The rhyme and the rhyming patterns emanate rhythm and musicality. The scale of lyricism is brought to the fore.

Soso Petrou-Vlassi, Poetess

The poetic collection "Incentives" consists of two volumes of rhyming quatrains. In each quatrain the reader receives a light that illuminates and burns. Each word is exactly where it should be as if there is no other to replace it... Poetry of superior aura, profound, essential, rare.

... It is poetry of the highest order. The cultivated reader is moved and participates in the poet's continuous upward course through transcendental realms...

Vasilis I. Lazanas, Author

In the poetic work “The Concealed Lotus of Manifestation” Dimitris Kakalidis turns to the heart of creation, the human being. He penetrates like “a musical concert”, like a “praise at dawn” in all human aspects both positive and negative, which he glorifies with great inspiration. He yearns to bring to light the divine nature of the human being.

... Your poetry is contemplative; it ascends the untrodden paths of poetry towards the eternal mystery. Our literary history —both early and modern— is not accustomed to such “mountaineering,” and your writing constitutes a renewing contribution which I hope will be appreciated as it deserves...

Vasilis Vitsaxis, Author

The poet praises Matter throughout all creation and his loud and clear-sound voice echoes in every particle of the Universe. He sanctifies Matter in its wanderings giving it its rightful place since the dawn of time. And Matter ascends to the source of its being, it is redeemed, becomes light, becomes the “Holy Matter” and spreads to the world immaculate and pure.

Here, philosophical thought meets the poetic word, and through the channels of a lyrical torrent settles a perfect poetic whole, which the initiated reader hearkens to and becomes spiritually taller.

Antonis Vazintaris, Litterateur

Poetry meets philosophy, Logos meets its echo, man meets his higher Self and they walk together dancing in harmony. In this poetic work, Dimitris Kakalidis, the “eternal sovereign”, rises the human being to the uttermost level of spiritual development from where the “realizer of winds”, the “peacemaker of waters” “emerges” and is “found” seeking the pre-eternal relation to the Universe.

Your mind perceives, contemplates, and advocates, not merely to institutionalize Ideas or to defend them, which would be of little significance, but to conquer them along the “path” towards action, towards inner victory, thus affirming the value of Ethics and Duty towards our hidden self.

Your texts present yet another expression of your spiritual Master and dearly beloved writer, Dimitris Kakalidis—a spiritual person who deserved the love of us all for his spirituality, which was expressed in his entire way of life as an element of profound love in action...

Evangelia Papachristou-Panou, Author

“My illness became a motive to seek spirituality that lead me to devote myself in learning and practicing spiritual healing, which I was taught in the spiritual centre Omilos Eksipiretiton.” Every page of this book is teemed with the power, the will, the creativity the author was expressing as a spiritual healer. An overwhelming book, an essential help for both the human body and soul.

Biography

The author was born in 1929 in Volos, Greece, where she spent her childhood and adolescence and where she married in 1958. One year later, she and her husband moved to Athens where they had a daughter. She passed away at the beginning of 1997. Her interest in the human ability to have a positive influence on the state of one's health had begun in 1972. At that time, she herself had faced a serious health problem. In 1982 she became acquainted with Omilos Eksipiretiton (The Servers' Society) Spiritual Centre and its founder, philosopher and writer Master Dimitris Kakalidis. Since then she followed the teaching of the Society and was trained in spiritual healing. Later on, she assumed responsibility for the organisation and supervision of the Spiritual Healing section of the Society

As the author describes her efforts to “conquer” fear, her work becomes an example to those who experience similar fears and phobias. The positive results she experienced with the help of Master Dimitris Kakalidis led her to seek the path of spirituality and continue her progress towards fearlessness.

Biography

Ioanna Dimakou was born in Novorosiski, Russia in 1938 and came to Greece in 1939. She studied Economics and Commercial Sciences in Athens. She married in 1965, had two children and worked at the Ministry of Economic Affairs for many years. In 1990, she began to have psychological problems that manifested themselves mainly in the form of phobias. In 1994, while the state of her health continued to remain unchanged, she visited for the first time the Master Dimitris Kakalidis, founder of the Servers' Society Spiritual Centre. From him she learned a new way to deal with life and her problems, through the philosophical view that everything is part of life. Her aim in writing the book is to describe the path she followed in order to overcome her phobias, a path that she continues to follow to attain her spiritual development.

Biography

A psychologist by profession, with great clinical experience in the field of psychotherapy, and by nature an admirer of the synthetic art of theatre through her amateur journeys in it, Evangelia Gkioni makes her debut as a writer with the children's story "A Line and a Dot and a Miracle on the Spot!".

Of course, the book was preceded by its theatrical adaptation and the performing of the respective play by the theatrical group that she organises, coordinates and directs (and also plays in it from time to time, depending on the needs). A theatrical group of twenty people, with a long history in the field of children's theatre, which performs exclusively selflessly in all kinds of facilities where they take in and take care of children. The position of the writer and of the group is the certainty that impassés do not exist and that every problem can be overcome. Why? Very simply, because inside us exists the miracle!

As this note requests in itself to be laconic, we will not, for the time being, cite her talks and presentations at academic, scientific and literary conferences, seminars, cultural and other events in Greece and abroad.

A book that honours the person of the woman as a terrestrial being, across the entire spectrum of her physical and psychological capacities. A study from woman to woman, offering substantial analysis on the deepest and broadest dimensions of her existence. I found myself within the lines of the work at many points, with its pros and cons in theory and in practice, regarding our role in the family, at work, and in life in general—culminating at the apex of this feminine creation's pyramid in love, and specifically, as you say, in creative love...

Galateia Balta, Author

Through specific examples of the woman's function, her positive and negative features and their respective consequences, it becomes evident that the woman's nature can bring essential improvements in life the moment she becomes aware of it, accepts it and decides to work in order to express her power, believing in herself and realizing that the miracle of life exists in her, the miracle of creation.

Biography

Klairi Lykiardopoulou was born in Athens. She went to school at the American College and completed her studies in pedagogy in the United States.

In 1980 she became member of Omilos Eksipiretiton - the "Servers' Society" Spiritual Centre and received teachings on self-study and the emergence of the spiritual nature of man with the guidance of its founder, Dimitris Kakalidis. For almost three decades, she was President of the Society and was dedicated to its task.

She wrote 20 books, conveying her personal experiences and the knowledge she acquired from the teaching of the Servers' Society, with an aim to demonstrate a dynamic way of life and a philosophical view which can help people to solve their problems when applied. She passed away in 2015, leaving a great legacy of experience and knowledge on human relationships and life.

For her literary work she has received commending reviews by the country's intellectual world. Extracts of her books have been included in anthologies and literary magazines. Her trilogy about the role of man, woman and the couple has been approved for school libraries.

I delight in your fluent and communicative word, which, within its teaching, incorporates everyday imagery in a more intelligible way. Your work is indeed a praiseworthy contribution to society.

Giorgos N. Carter, Poet

In the book's opening the author sends a letter to the “unknown known Readers” and opens a dialogue with them. Through this dialogue “in simple thoughts and deeds” of daily life, the flow of life becomes the Master and piece-by-piece the true Knowledge is revealed. Thus, the path towards seeking the true Self begins.

A beautiful book that I recommend without hesitation to everyone. It is easy to read and will definitely speak to your heart, your soul and your mind, as it did to mine.

Evdokia Smyrniotou
member of Omilos Eksipiretiton, English teacher

In this candid, insightful compilation of short stories Ade Durojaiye invites us to join Alex, the main character of the book, on his journey towards spiritual awareness. This book takes us through the challenges of life, love, fear and depression, and the importance of bringing spirituality into our everyday life.

Biography

Ade Durojaiye was born in Croydon, Greater London, England to a traditional working-class Nigerian family. A few years after leaving University where he studied Construction Project Management, Ade moved to Greece. Moving to Greece was a beautiful experience but the breakdown of his long-term relationship led to his depression. This later became the catalyst for coming into contact with Omilos Eksipiretiton (the Server's Society). An event that he now looks back on as a defining moment in his life.

Ade began writing the first stories about his experiences in 2013 just before he moved back to England. When Ade is not writing he is busy refurbishing properties as a Project Manager.

He currently lives in Richmond, England but spends every available free time in Greece with his spiritual family.

POETRY AS THERAPY

In this poetic collection you will find themes such as change, belonging, nostos but also rebirth through a spiritual path. Through her discipleship in Omilos Eksipiretiton and inspired by life transitions both in her personal life but also at worldwide level, like the covid-19 pandemic, the author presents her first poetic collection written directly in English.

Biography

Fevronia Christodoulidi, PhD, was born and grew up in Athens, Greece. After completing her undergraduate studies at the School of Philosophy at the University of Athens, she moved to the UK where she trained as a psychotherapist and has been working as a practitioner and academic in this field. She has been a member of Omilos Eksipiretiton in Greece since 1994 and she is one of the founding members of the Servers' Society UK Association. She is a Senior Lecturer at a London-based University, teaching on counselling programmes which attract students from diverse cultural and spiritual backgrounds. In 2011, she received the 1st place for the Free Verse Poetry Prize at the 22nd World Congress of Poets for her poem 'Marbles in Exile'. Together with Paraskevi Kostopetrou, she has published on the 'Kakalidis Method of Literature Analysis' in 2014. Since moving to London in 2013, she has been participating as a member of Omilos and the Servers' Society UK Association in organising events in the UK, so that the work of Omilos is developed and expanded.

Megas Seirios Publications, based in Greece, publish selected works of poetry and literature by contemporary writers, as well as essays on human relationships and knowledge of the self.

Our aim is to highlight the authors' work to the readers through the quality art direction of our books. The authors of our publications have received a plethora of awards and exceptional reviews from international literary institutions and reviewers. Included in our activities, that take place under the auspices of Omilos Eksipiretiton, is to organize literary events in Greece and abroad, Literary Writing Workshops and presentations at academic and literary conferences.
